

Non-Unionized Faculty Grievance Process

1. Background and Purpose

Dalhousie University ('Dalhousie') is committed to creating and maintaining workplaces that are respectful, fair and harmonious. Accessible procedures for academic staff to resolve disputes arising out of their employment or appointments at Dalhousie are required to support this commitment.

The Academic Staff Grievance Process ('Grievance Process') is designed to encourage dispute resolution at the interpersonal level. Where this type of resolution is not possible, the Grievance Process establishes an institutional mechanism for the pursuit of resolution. For non-unionized faculty, this process can be used to address disputes relating to any academic matter (e.g. academic freedom, teaching, research, etc.).

This grievance process falls under the jurisdiction and authority of the Dalhousie University Board of Governors and applies only to academic staff appointed under Dalhousie's Academic Appointments Policy who are not part of a union. Unionized academic staff are required to use the grievance process laid out in their collective agreement. Harassment and discrimination complaints may be made directly to Human Rights and Equity Services.

2. Definitions

- i. Facilitated Resolution Services – at prescribed times throughout the Grievance Process, including at the Pre-Grievance Stage, the parties to a grievance may consent to conflict resolution services facilitated by a staff member from Human Resources or Human Rights and Equity Services.
- ii. Grievance – any dispute arising between a Grievor and Dalhousie arising out of the Grievor's existing terms and conditions of employment or appointment with Dalhousie. A Grievance does not include a dispute arising out of a former employment or appointment relationship.
- iii. Grievor – any person with active employment or an active appointment who is not eligible to access another established grievance process at Dalhousie University. Former employees and former appointees do not have standing to initiate a grievance under this process.
- iv. Interim Measures – an action taken on a temporary basis to prevent or minimize harm.
- v. Memorandum of Resolution – a detailed written description of the resolution of a Grievance. A Memorandum of Resolution shall formally document the full and final resolution of the Grievance.

3. General Principles

- i. The timelines in the grievance process may be extended with the agreement of both parties.
- ii. It is the responsibility of the Grievor and the decision maker to identify any conflicts of interest:
 - a) If a department head has a conflict of interest, the grievance will automatically move to the formal grievance stage to be adjudicated by the Dean.
 - b) If a Dean has a conflict of interest, the grievance will automatically move to the Provost Review stage to be adjudicated by the Provost's panel.
 - c) If the Provost has a conflict of interest, the grievance will remain at the Provost Review stage, but the President will serve as Chair of the Provost's panel.
 - d) If the Assistant Vice-President of Human Resources has a conflict of interest, the grievance will remain at the Provost Review stage, but the Vice-President of Finance and Administration will serve on the Provost's Panel.
 - e) If the Chair of Senate has a conflict of interest, the grievance will remain at the Provost Review stage, but another Senate Officer will serve on the Provost's Panel.
- iii. Discussion under the grievance process shall be kept confidential, however, this does not prevent parties from seeking advice from Human Resources or legal representatives, or from consulting with their support person and/or medical and mental health resources.
- iv. At any stage in the process, if there is risk of harm, the University may implement appropriate and reasonable interim measures.

4. Pre-Grievance Stage

- i. Resolutions obtained through open, honest dialogue have the highest chance of leading to sustained change to relationships and work environments. Any party with a concern arising in or out of their employment or appointment with Dalhousie is encouraged (but not compelled) to first attempt to resolve the concern directly with the people concerned within 30 business days of the event leading to the concern.
- i. If needed, parties may seek informal advice or assistance at this stage. Possible resources include:
 - a) department or faculty-level Human Resources staff; and/or
 - b) colleagues
- iii. Pursuing resolution at the Pre-Grievance stage is strongly recommended, but it is not a required step before proceeding to the Informal Grievance stage.

5. Informal Grievance Stage

- ii. If a Grievor does not resolve the Grievance at the Pre-Grievance stage, they should request an Informal Grievance meeting with their Department Head within 10 business days of either:
 - a) the last occurrence of the matter giving rise to the grievance; or
 - b) becoming aware of the matter or its last occurrence; or
